Introduction

People know that warrior cats doesn't celebrate Christmas, but if they did, I have an idea of what it would be like. Instead of calling it Christmas, it would be called "StarClan's coming". It would celebrate how StarClan came to be. It would be the exact same day that Christmas is. It would be the happiest time of year, just like Christmas is with us.

This is just a little something I made up, so I hope you like it!!

What warriors would do to celebrate StarClan's coming

There is lots of ways the warriors would celebrate StarClan's coming.

On the night of StarClan's coming, all of the Clans would meet up at their gathering place in a truce, like always. First, they would all have a huge meal with fresh kill, all of the Clans share food. Sort of like how we have a big feast on Christmas.

Then they would all have time to chat and catch up on things. After a little while of that, they would send a huge prayer to StarClan, thanking them for having existence.

Last of all, all of the Clans would give each other presents, including maybe fresh kill, herbs for the medicine cats, berries, and more things like that. Whatever object that would please a warrior cat. Then all the Clans return to their territory.

Instead of Santa

You all probably want to know who would be the Santa in StarClan's coming. He is a tom cat named Jingleberry. He is a snow white cat with berry red eyes.

He is a cat from StarClan, so in the actual world, he would be like a ghost.

On the night of StarClan's coming, he would visit each Clan while they were sleeping.

He would put gifts outside the nursery. Gifts like a glove or a ball for the kits to play with. He's sort of like Robin Hood, he steals from Twolegs and gives that stuff to the small little kits. He might also give gifts to the young apprentices. That's who the new Santa would be.

Decorations

In each camp, all of the cats would decorate for StarClan's coming. They Would probably decorate with ivy, berries, etc. They would put decorations on their entrance to camp, all over the dens, all over the camp, to get in the StarClan's coming spirit.

Conclusion

I hope you guys liked this little book on how warrior cats would celebrate Christmas. Sorry if the story is a little short. If there's anything I should add, let me know:)

It's fine if you think this "StarClan's Coming" is ridiculous!
